life in Happy Valley

Planning for the health of Happy Valley began years ago, at Happy Valley's inception, when residents asked for a place where individuals and families can thrive. From there, a community was built around these values. Greenspaces, parks and nature areas abound for the enjoyment of all. A city where kids and adults feel safe to play and be active is preserved. Excellent schools, full of dedicated teachers, administrators and volunteers, help our students reach their goals. Business development leads to more jobs and services for residents.

farmers market

Every Saturday from May to October, the Sunnyside Farmers Market is open for business. With over 80 vendors, there is something for everyone, including locally grown fruits and vegetables, artisan food items, quality handmade goods and art, and more.

library activity

The Happy Valley Library, one of the most important resources in the community, provides extensive programming for children and adults. Whether you want to attend a storytime with your children, learn a new skill, join a community group, or simply explore the bookshelves, the library is a great place to spend some time.

hood view park sports

This is often the place to be for a variety of sporting events. Multiple sports organizations, including soccer, baseball, softball and football, use the fields throughout the year.

local farms

Family run farms, including Siri and Son Farms, still operate just outside of Happy Valley. These farms often sell their produce locally to grocery stores, restaurants and at farmers market stands.

sculpture garden

Located at City Hall, the Happy Valley Sculpture Garden is a rotating art display that includes sculptures from local artists. New sculptures are brought in every two years and are available for purchase.

nature trails

With close to 400 acres of preserved nature areas, it is not difficult to take a break and get your blood pumping on a local trail.
